TO-DAY'S CABLES.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)

REPARATIONS. ANOTHER ALLIED CONFERENCE.

PARIS, September 1.
The press statement cabled earlier that another conference is likely is confirmed by an announcement issued after the Cabinet Council presided over by M. Millerand to-day at which M. Poincare explained the foreign situation. The Cabinet agreed that as a moratorium has not been accorded to Germany it could only take cognizance of the decision of the Reparations Commission. The Cabinet decided to reserve liberty of action as regards forthcoming German payments until the conditions imposed were carried out as Belgium who was entitled to receive the whole of the payments had not merely accepted but proposed the scheme adopted by the Commission. The Cabinet, however, decided to insist on a meeting as soon as possible of a conference of all the allies to consider the whole question of inter-allied debts and reparations.

BERLIN PRESS RELIEVED.

BERLIN, September 1.
With the exception of the newspapers of the extreme Right, which declare that the Reparations Commission's decision is unacceptable, the Press is generally relieved that time has been gained and the situation somewhat alleviated though the extent of the alleviation and Germany's acceptance depend on the guarantees demanded by Belgium.

It is announced that owing to the serious political situation and the outbreak of food troubles Herr Richter, prefect of police in Berlin has cancelled his visit to the international congress of police chiefs in New York.

THE BOXER INDEMNITIES.

A CHINESE VIEW.

LONDON, September 1.
The suggested remission of the Boxer indemnities is discussed in a letter to the Times by Mr. Long Liang, Chairman of the Chinese United Association for the League of Nations. He expresses the opinion that the idea is viewed too much from the commercial standpoint of how it may benefit British trade and thinks it should rather be considered as an accustomed British deed of generosity. In connection with the advisability of the importation of new ideas and new knowledge into China he dwells upon the necessity of carefully selecting only the most suitable graduates of Chinese and home universities and refutes the suggestion that organized propaganda is conducted by a semi-official section of young China for the remission of the indemnities. He points out that such remissions were never understood to be unconditional but to be spent on sending students to England and elsewhere.

BELGIAN SOLDIERS SHOT ON THE RHINE.

APOLOGY DEMANDED FROM GERMANY.

BRUSSELS, September 1.
A Belgian sentry and a sergeant at Obercaessel on the Rhine were shot dead last night. The guard immediately turned out, whereupon a number of men disappeared into various caves. A dozen arrests were made. The Belgian Government has informed the local authorities that unless the culprits are arrested in six hours the authorities will be placed under arrest. The Foreign Minister has requested the German Charge d'Affaires to demand apologies from the German government on pain of eventual sanctions.

TRIAL OF G. L. BEVAN.

SEVEN CHARGES OF FRAUD.

LONDON, September 1.
G. L. Bevan reappeared at the Guildhall. Sir Richard Muir, opening the Crown case, said Bevan completely dominated the companies of which he was director. Deception and fraud were the essence of the seven charges on which Sir Richard asked for a committal. As instances of alleged fraud Sir Richard Muir asserted that in one balance sheet a debt of £310,623 appeared as only £51,423 and a supposed investment of £198,776 in treasury bills was non-existent. The hearing was adjourned to September 14.

U. S. COMMISSION INVESTIGATES.

THE HAGUE, September 1.
An international trade Commission organized under the auspices of the southern commercial congress of the United States is paying a three days' visit to the Netherlands investigating with a view to direct trade relations between the United States and the Netherlands.

Leicester beat Gloucester by 74. Astill bowled 6 for 28 and Geary 4 for 43. In the second Astill took 4 for 37 and Geary 6 for 26, including the Hat Trick.

WAR IN ASIA MINOR.

GOING NICELY NOW.

LONDON, September 1.
That the Turks are rapidly advancing in Asia Minor appears from a Greek communiqué which declares that violent enemy infantry and artillery attacks on the Bekirah front were repulsed. Enemy attempts to cut off railway communication with Ushak failed. It is noteworthy that Ushak is seventy miles west of Afionkarahissar. The communiqué adds that the great battle which started on August 20 continued on August 29 and 30 with varying intensity. The Greeks in the region of Ulujak and Tulubunar retired before powerful pressure. Smyrna reports that heavy fighting continues at Tulubunar and West of Afionkarahissar. Greek reinforcements are hurrying up to meet the attacks of large Kemalite forces well-equipped with heavy artillery and aircraft. The newspapers in Athens state that the King will shortly preside at a council of war to examine the situation.

FOOD RIOTS IN GERMANY.

HIGH PRICES CAUSE INDIGNATION.

BERLIN, September 1.
Food riots broke out in Eberswalde last night. A crowd of four thousand, many of whom were women, vented their indignation at the high prices by smashing windows and plundering shops. The police were stoned after which they fired on the crowd ten of whom are reported to have been wounded. Police reinforcements are being sent from Berlin.

NORTHCOT PAPER.

SOME CHANGES.

LONDON, September 1.
Campbell Stuart, hitherto regarded as liaison officer between Northcliffe's newspapers, has resigned the managing editorship of the Daily Mail, his directorship of the Daily Mail and other Northcliffe newspapers, and is apparently devoting himself entirely to the increased responsibilities of the managing directorship of the Times. It is assumed, therefore, that the properties will henceforth be conducted as separate entities.

TENNIS.

DAVIS CUP.

LONDON, September 1.
At Foresthill in the challenge round for the Davis Cup, Tilden won the first set of singles with Patterson by 7 to 5.
Tilden took the next sets 10-8 6-0, thus winning the match.

INDIAN LOOTERS.

A BIG BAND AT LARGE.

MADRAS, September 1.
The newspaper Swarajya reports the situation in the Godavary district is becoming acute. Four police stations were looted by tribesmen who formed a band now reported to number thousands. Special police were unable to ascertain the whereabouts of the band.

Corns Peel Off Painlessly

There is Only One Genuine Corn-Peeler—"Gels-it".
There's only one happy way to get rid of any corn or callus, and that is to be able to peel it off easily, painlessly. "Gels-it" is the only corn remedy in the world that does it

"2 drops of 'Gels-it'—Corns are doomed!"
that way—effectively, thoroughly.
Why get down on the floor, tie your self up into a knot, and have to labor with troublesome plasters, greasy ointments that rub off, sticky tape, and knives and scissors, when you can peel off your corn or callus in one complete piece, peacefully and surely, with magic, simple, easy "Gels-it". It takes 2 or 3 seconds to apply "Gels-it"; you use 2 or 3 drops, and that is all. "Gels-it" does the rest. Get rid of that corn-pain at once, so that you can work and play without corn torture. Be sure to use
"Gels-it". It never fails.

"Gels-it" is the guaranteed, money-back corn-remedy, the only sure way, costs but a trifle at all chemists and stores. Sold by Dr. Lawrence &

HUSBAND'S NIGHT WATCH.

AMATEUR DETECTIVE CALL AT A FLAT.

A husband who successfully played the part of a detective was Mr. Ernest Albert Beddall Croxford, residing at River View gardens, Barnes, an insurance broker, who asked Mr. Justice Salter in the Divorce Court to grant him the dissolution of his marriage because of the adultery of his wife
Phyllis with a man named Elwin Mott.

A defence had been put in, but was not persisted with, and it was announced that the damages had been agreed at £200.

Mr. Lewis Thomas, K.C., for the husband said petitioner and his wife had been employed in the same office.
The marriage took place in June, 1919,
and the parties lived at Madrid-road, Barnes. There were no children. In 1920 the wife exhibited signs of restlessness, and took a situation in a stockbroker's office against her husband's wishes, and expressed her determination to take a flat with a lady friend, which she accordingly did.

He remonstrated with her, and sent one or two affectionate letters pointing out the impropriety of her conduct, and suggesting what might happen.
However, she did not come back.
After one letter to her he received a solicitor's letter threatening proceedings for judicial separation on the ground of alleged cruelty, and although the suit was brought in October, 1920, it was dismissed by Mr. Justice Branson.

Meanwhile the wife was watched,
but not sufficient evidence could be obtained until the husband and a friend turned detectives.

Then the wife was seen on December 13, 1920, to go to the co-respondent's flat in Great Titchfieldstreet, West London. About midnight the light in the front room went out, and after watching all night the watchers knocked at the door of the flat in the morning, when the co-re-spon-dent came down in his pyjamas. For-

"TRUTH, JUSTICE, PUBLIC SERVICE"

HONGKONG, SATURDAY, SEPT. 2, 1922.

ADVERSARIA.

I am an old hand at the polemics game, hardened in wickedness, up to all the tricks, and I never really supposed that "Roderick Random" could teach me anything, despite his obvious willingness to instruct his grandmother how to suck eggs. On his last appearance about a week ago I did not answer him, having then quite enough to talk about. This week things are slack and something I see in the latest Truth reminds me of his obiter dicta on the art of "putting ideas across." He said:

The results, as the China Mail generously admitted on this occasion, that the Daily Press published "a thoughtful leader." "Thoughtful leader," I may remind my friends, carry more weight with thoughtful people—the people, that is, to whom they are addressed—than do acid eruditions due to mental indigestion through insufficient mastication, de-cient salivation, and hasty deglutition. "Vital subjects" are worthy of careful treatment. The flamboyant and roocco style of writing generally impresses the author more than his readers.

The China Mail didn't credit the D.P. with "a thoughtful leader." That would have been to admit that it thinks. We said it printed a leader "giving well reasoned arguments," and as these well reasoned arguments happened to be our own, that did not seem out of generosity unduly.

I do not know if "Roderick" meant the China Mail when he spoke of a "flamboyant and roocco style of writing," but as regards the main object of getting attention and getting things done, I commend to him for consideration the following quotation from Truth. A Truth opinion may weigh more with him than any of mine.

"The lesson for journalists is that so long as you rely on mere reason and arithmetic to demonstrate abuses, no one will listen; but make a red-hot case with specific charges of crime, and you are sure of a hearing at once. Sundry honourable members delivered edifying sentiments last Friday about 'public journals making reckless accusations,' about the mischief done by advertising 'scandal' and 'robbery' in big type, and so forth. The fault lies with the failure of people, including honourable members themselves, to attend to anything of public importance that appears in print unless it is dressed up and forced on their notice like a sensational murder or a tasty divorce case."

I do hope that "Roderick" is not deluding himself by thinking he knows anything about "style." If Buffon was right when he said "le style est de l'homme," "Roderick's" style is of himself. That looks too like a horrible libel, so I stress the "it." Shaw (picked out recently at a local dinner party by a good judge as our best stylist) declares that "effectiveness of assertion is the Alpha and Omega of style." If "flamboyant and roocco" stuff like mine is effective, (as it has proved itself) why, there you are. I am (to my own profound astonishment) a certified stylist. Style without something to say may be pretty, like the wax lady in the milliner's window, but it cannot kiss you back. I usually have something to say (not always) and I say it as convincingly as I can, in any style that at the moment seems to me suitable, but usually simple and straightforward, calling spades spades. If I am "flamboyant and roocco" sometimes, and that hurts anybody, I'm sorry. The point is that my job is to "get it over" or "put it across." Do I do my job? O, Roderick! Bend your pendulous ears towards the outside where the great public is, and hearken to the roar that answers that question. "He blooming well does." Is this concealed? Very well then. I am concealed. But style is the man himself. No man, no style. Concealed or not, I get it across. Roderick! I advise you to hesitate over again venturing to criticize me in such matters. Make a noise like an honest egg, and beat it.

By way of warning the Government not to be so sticky about giving him a site for a branch Church in Kowloon, the Rev. Mr. Macoschke in an interview in the Post warns His Excellency and his advisers not "to incur the lasting resentment of a large and reputable portion of the community." But it is well known that this large and reputable community is bound to forgive its enemies.

I am doomed to seem ungrateful to those who do me honour. The Ex-Active Men made me an honorary member of their club, and owing to differences of opinion with one of their leaders, I had to write about them as I did last week. Now the Book Club members have paid me the immense compliment of electing me an honorary member for life, and I am writing this note to deplore their hesitation in transferring their headquarters from inappropriate premises kindly lent but lent on conditions, to the City Hall which seems to me their natural abiding place. The fact is that as a Book Club, simply, they can successfully abide wherever they may happen to be comfortable. But my original idea was not that they should be simply to cater for the members, but also to help, encourage, and popularize the Public Library. I wanted to see that public institution with more books and more readers, and a co-operating Book Club could have brought this about. At the time of writing it isn't really settled. The Committee went to investigate the City Hall proposition after the meeting. I did nothing to influence their decision, thinking that hardly fair in the circumstances; but I hope they will allow "public spirit" to have a share in influencing their decision, whatever it was.

P.S.—I hear they found the room at the City Hall quite unsuitable. Modern controversy. MISDIRECTED sialists may be INFERENCES observed reminding us that the war was to be a leveller, abolishing nobility and other unkindnesses. They conclude that in some way the people who have not amended their ways are guilty of disloyalty to the war. The inference more just, of course, is that the prophecy that the war would do these things was a false prophecy. Men are always inferring wrongly from the wrong side, like the judge in the following anecdote. Some Western State of America passed a law, in the interests of temperance, that no drinking-saloon should exist within a mile of any school-house. Under this a Court decided that certain existing school-houses must be pulled down.

It were probably useful to see ourselves as others see us. Robert Burns was no fool. Some of his readers, however, probably regard the desired "gifts" as a preparation for seeing ourselves as we really are. That would be fatal. Scripture bids man know himself, but scripture includes some human extravagances and fallibilities. It is more than likely that if ever man realizes reality, shedding illusions, on that day men will die.

Oh Science! What follies are perpetrated in thy austere name. Sometimes by men that have done things to earn the name of scientists. Oftener by unscientific journalists embroidering their proclamations. Professor Elliot Smith of London University is the latest ass, or the latest victim of an ass, as the case may prove. He "sweeps away" the conclusions of his predecessors. He "brushes aside" other theories about the "Pittdown" Skull, and declares that its original owner lived in the early "Pleistocene" (sic) period. The first man were black. They originated (from men-like apes "from the Siwalik Hills in the foot hills of the Himalayas"—in the hollow just beyond the dead tree that you see on your left as you step up the path where the dead snake lies, I would like to add, emulating his particularity. If the anthropologists are really going to carry on like this, I'll go back to Genesis—a much more intelligent (and "scientific") theory of the origin of man.

A local man thinks we newspapermen should refer to De Valera as "Devil Bra." There is justice in the pun. This devilish politician used to talk quite reasonably about the wickedness of murderous arguments, and now out-herods Herod.

Is a by word. Mocked THE CITY at by people who do not LIBRARY use it and who do nothing for it. It deserves some jeers. It wants weeding, and it wants restocking. It wants a catalogue. It wants to be used more. After all, it is our library, ours as a community. It is what we allow it to be, and it could be whatever we like to make it. Books are added occasionally, "when funds allow." If we cared enough, we could soon make the funds allow more. It is a shame to see it neglected. A community library is about the most useful asset a community can have. Because the Hongkong Club has a library famous for its excellence is no reason why we shouldn't have another as good—for that larger community which may not go to the Club. If the Book Club is not going to help it, what about a City Library Revival Committee, to collect subscriptions and donations, and popularize this neglected institution? Who will join?

There was a man in the land of Hong, NAUGHTY! whose name was Adversarius, and that man was an example of cheerfulness, one that feared none, and denounced evils.

His substance was so-so, and he complained not of it, but was content. Now there was a day when the barbingers of Fate came to present themselves before their Lord, and Badjoss came also among them.

And Fate said unto Badjoss, Whence comest thou? Then Badjoss answered and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it.

And Fate said unto Badjoss, Hast thou considered my servant Adversarius, that there is none like him in Hong, and ever cheerful meward?

Then Badjoss answered and said, Dost thou thus for no reward? It is easy to be cheerful when all goes well. Thou hast given him pleasant times, and the work of his fountainpen has not been wasted.

But put forth thy hand now, and tease him, and he will be otherwise. And Fate said to Badjoss, Behold, he is in thy power, but do not slay him.

And there was a day when Adversarius got a whitlow, and had his thumb mutilated by a skillful surgeon, and did suffer great pain. Yet did he continue to make bad jokes, and be foolishly facetious. Then got he a cruel cough, which kept him busy, and between coughs he indulged in laughter.

Then Badjoss did cover him with the boils of Hong, the same coming upon his legs, his arms, and the back of his neck, and upon his body, and even at last in such place that to sit save on the corner of a chair was painful. He did not scrape himself with a pot-herl. He swore mildly, and went on joking.

Then came unto him Temanites and Shuities, yea, and Naamathites, that were worse to bear even than boils; but he went yachting, and did keep cheerful.

Then Badjoss threw in his hand, and ran down a steep place, and became as a stranger in that land. And the moral of it is: Why worry?

My apologies are due to SOME of the other guests at a DINNER small dinner party I attended this week. Prior to the dinner the hostess had been spinning about my favourite dishes, in a general sort of way; but I had no idea that I would be taken so literally. The menu (which must have flabbergasted some of the highly respectable guests) was as follows:

Hor-d'oeuvre, Pickled Onions
Oatmeal Porridge
Braised beef and onions
Omelet with herbs
Blood puddings
Cheese and pickled onions.
And the drinks began with German beer and finished with cocktails, though liqueurs were permitted to those who faked.

Voluntary MAYBE Mr. Mackintosh, as president, REGISTRATION elect of the E. A. S. OF CLUBBIES. M. A. Club, will not object to this.

The Government still desires that information as to who can do what in strike time. Let the E.A.S.M. A. as an association, take a register of its members, noting their special qualifications, what they will be willing to undertake, etc., and bug it in to the Government. Very useful, and a good example for other clubs to follow. There isn't likely to be a useful man who isn't a member of a club of some sort.

"O why should the spirit of ONA mortal be proud?" I'm WET shair I dinna ken' but it is DAY proud, sometimes tremendously so. Trying to board a tram one wet day this week, I had to give precedence to a female about 48 inches high, that carried its chin up, and walked with what it seemed to suppose was a dignified, regal step. It looked the substance and she contours that make a woman a woman for a he-man, but apparently it put trust in its clothes, which were (though I'm no judge of these things) of the demurest mode. It did the goosestep very slowly while I fidgetted in the rain. It loitered on the step. I put my hand where it ought to have been rounder than it was, and pushed it inside, remarking: "Folks, we lass. You are keeping solid folk in the rain, and the sight of your spindleshanks is not worth a wetting."

Leave-in-days and go-out! You should have seen the expression on the child's face. It froze the rain drops. I was lying off a rocky shore in these parts, a few days ago, in one of my yachts, and I watched a crowd of natives, young men and boys, shedding their clothes and clustering on the edge of the rocks. Were they going to swim off and board me? Or what? I soon learned. A couple of sticks of dynamite were thrown into the water, and without waiting for the geyser caused by the explosions to subside, the yelling mob dived in. They threw the stunned fish to the few men who remained on the shore, and made a fair haul. A very interesting sight; but a dangerous game. Incidentally unlawful, but they were a long way from a policeman.

OUR WATER The fact that our rainfall measures up to last year's, and that the water in Taitam Tak is still thirty feet lower than it should be, coupled with the fact that the people cannot have used or wasted so much more, suggests that the Chinese tale of a leakage from the reservoir is not so foolish as we all thought it. I went round the place on Sunday morning, peering about below the dam especially, and could find no signs of leakage. But I'm told now by two men of savvy that an underground leakage into the sea is not an impossibility. It could emerge so far out as to be missed, even if divers went looking for submarine springs. If there is anything like that going on, it is a great pity. But other authorities do not believe it is. The shortage, in that case, still requires explanation.

"The best picture we've seen for a long time" was the general verdict of those who saw "Love's Crucible," the wonderful Swedish picture, screened at the Coronet yesterday. In all respects, acting, photography and staging, it was miles and miles ahead of the average American photoplay. Its setting and costumes were superb and the whole production was truly an artistic triumph of which the scores and scores of mediocre films that have been turned out in recent years have made us forget that the screen is capable.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

We are officially informed that the rumour that Wiseman's old site in Des Voeux Road has been sold is not true. It is a fact, however, that the site is for sale.

The total output of the Kailan Mining Administration's mines for the week ending August 19 amounted to 74,935 tons and the sales during the period to 62,997 tons.

Burglars entered No. 56A, Nathan Road, Kowloon, during last night and stole a gold chain and a bracelet worth $100 from the dressing table in Mrs. Avenell's bedroom.

Miss Mabel Jordan, a visitor who arrived by the a.s. "Empress of Asia," and is at present living at St. George's Hotel, Kennedy Road, had her small leather case containing $40 in American currency notes, one Canadian note and some Chinese and Japanese coins snatched from her by a Chinese youth while walking in Kennedy Road a little beyond the hotel yesterday afternoon.

A Chinese widow living at No. 30, Peel Street, first floor, reports that a man dressed as a Chinese monk visited her flat yesterday and offered her a "lucky charm," which he said would bring her plenty of money. When she accepted, the "monk" asked the woman to hand him all the money she had got for him to plant the silver tree. The unsuspecting woman gave up $61.70, and the man promptly bolted with it.

An amazing incident is reported from Yokohama, a foreign resident receiving a severe electric shock while having a bath in his house. The resident in question, Mr. A. W. L. Giles had returned home to his bungalow on the bluff, and had scarcely entered his bath when the shock occurred. He was just able to crawl out on to the floor where he was later found by Mrs. Giles. He had been badly burned about the ankles and back, and was absolutely exhausted. The explanation given of the accident is that the cable of the electric company passes under the bungalow, and it must have been as a result of a defect in the insulation that the shock was received by Mr. Giles.

SUBMARINE FATALITY.

CORONAL INQUIRY CONCLUDED.

SOMEONE'S NEGLIGENCE RESPONSIBLE.

The submarine fatality inquiry, was concluded yesterday afternoon by Mr. R. E. Lindell, as Coroner, and a jury composed of Messrs W. McK. Pittendrigh (foreman), R. D. Baptista and J. Gomes. The jury returned a verdict of "death by misadventure," after much deliberation.

Several witnesses were re-examined before the Coroner summed up. Ah Ewan the head contractor said that when he was asked to take the No. 1 painter to Mr. Brookshaw's office on the 15th ult. he did not take the proper No. 1 because the latter was very busy, but he took in a man who was well acquainted with the work. He also admitted that when Mr. Brookshaw gave written instructions on the 16th to start work on the L8, he (witness) did not tell the No. 1 painter to consult Mr. Brookshaw before starting.

Cheung Ng, shipwright foreman, said he opened up the tanks on the 16th on instructions from Mr. Middie. He opened the tanks again on the 17th, but was not on board when the gang started work that morning. Some of his folk, however, had been into the interior of the submarine to remove bolts.

When Dr. Esler was recalled, the Coroner said: The question has been raised by the jury if the man was overcome by gas fumes and fell into the stagnant water at the bottom of the tank and was drowned.

Dr. Esler: I think it very likely that this was so, but at the post-mortem examination the signs I found were more like those of asphyxia than of drowning.

There was no water in the lungs? Yes, but I would expect to find more in a case of drowning. The fact that artificial respiration was tried might have taken the water from the lungs. Then it is possible that the deceased was overcome by gas and fell into the water and was drowned?—Yes.

THE SUMMING-UP.

The Coroner, in summing up, briefly reviewed the evidence and went on to say that it remained for the jury to decide whether the death was a mere accident or whether such blame attached to any person as to bring that person within the law of manslaughter; that was to say, whether any one had been guilty of culpable negligence in failing to take proper precautions before any workman entered the submarine tanks before they were safe. Four or five persons appeared to be directly or indirectly responsible for the work on the submarine. There was Mr. Brookshaw, who, as chief shipwright, gave orders to the chief contractor for the work to be undertaken on this particular boat. The chief contractor was then told to consult the charge man (Mr. Middie).

"What does he do?" continued the Coroner. "He merely instructs his No. 1 painter that the boat is ready to work upon and that he can carry on. The No. 1 painter in his turn, (on the 16th ult.) asks Mr. Middie if the tanks are ready. Mr. Middie says definitely that they are not. Apparently, without any further reference to Mr. Middie, the No. 1 painter sends 12 of his men into the tanks on the morning of the 17th—four for each of the three tanks."

Continuing the Coroner remarked that this No. 1 painter had admitted having done ten previous jobs of the same sort and that he had never had any real accident before. This led him to suppose that it was not really dangerous to go down into the tanks. At the same time it was generally known in the Yard that the tanks might be dangerous and that precautions had to be taken before anyone was sent down. Despite that, the No. 1 painter allowed his men to go straight on. Whether the contractor or the No. 1 painter was guilty of culpable negligence was for the jury to decide.

Dealing with Mr. Middie's evidence, the Coroner said that Mr. Middie knew that the tanks had to be tested by means of a lighted candle before the painters entered them. This test had not been carried out but Mr. Middie had said that he had no idea that the men intended to go down into the tanks that morning. Mr. Middie admitted that it had become the practice, had become common—for the foreman to take men on board and start "right in" without any reference to the charge-man. There, again, the jury had to decide if this practice amounted to culpable negligence against Mr. Middie. If, on the other hand, the jury found that the practice was not culpable, they would bring in a verdict of accidental death and they could add a rider censuring any particular person.

The Foreman asked for the guidance of the jury in view of the difficulties

ROBBERS ESCAPE.

AFTER HOT PURSUIT.

Lenore-Sergeant Bowick was patrolling the harbour at 3 o'clock this morning in the No. 8 Police Launch, when, off Kaitai Island, he heard a police whistle being blown ashore. Simultaneously became a small boat with two men in it towing away apparently in a great hurry. He told his coxswain and a seaman to call upon the men to stop, but they took no notice of the men's shout. The Sergeant fired a round from his revolver into the water to frighten the fugitives, but still without result. The men landed at Jardine's Wharf to the west of the Sugar Refinery and disappeared in the gloom. The Sergeant who was some 100 yards behind them, also landed and searched for the men in the vicinity for half an hour without success. In the boat which was found among some samans lying alongside the wharf, the Sergeant found a wooden box and two baskets containing clothing. The box had been forced open and its contents were in a jumble. The boat was taken to the Police basin at Yau-moti and the box and baskets transferred to the Tsimshatsui Police Station.

THE EARTHQUAKE.

Then suddenly a something indefinable, a strange, new sound, insistent, searching, demanding to be heard caught the ear.

At first it was as the sound of the little waves of a calm sea, gurgling on the shingle of the shore, then drawing back the little stones with noisy recession; gurgling again, and withdrawing. But, even thus moderate, there was a dread significance in the noise. It was the little cloud on the horizon, coming before the great storm.

Deliberate; not swift to accomplish itself; relentless to achieve its crisis, the walling noise grew ever in volume, in awful strength. It was as if a mighty, racking tornado was slowly scouring the earth, mercilessly and unobscuredly pulling up the trees by their roots, tearing the woodwork off the houses, dragging apart the very vitals of the earth and harvesting all this debris for one supreme upheaval.

There was an atmosphere of tense, silent expectation. A little child's gasp for breath broke the strain; women fainting; young girls shrieking; the weaker among the men in the fascinated crowd spluttered importantly as if by their influence they could check the inevitable. Strong men blanched, and, though the noise was now so terrific, so vibrant as to rend the very nerves and move the very flesh of them, braced themselves to stand the shock with white courage. . . . at last it happened.

The Chinamen spat.

"STRAITS PRODUCE."

of the case, if a verdict of manslaughter could be returned without bringing the charge home to any particular person.

The Coroner replied that in the event of the jury returning a verdict of manslaughter they would have to state some particular person or persons.

THE VERDICT.

The jury then retired to consider their verdict and, after an absence of 15 minutes, returned with a verdict of accidental death due to misadventure.

A RIDER.

The Foreman announced that they wished to add the following rider:—"The jury wish to put on record their view that this fatal accident arises out of negligence on the part of some person in the Naval Yard, and inasmuch as foul tanks are virtual death-traps, the tank which deceased entered should not have been accessible until it had been certified to be free from gas."

"Further, the jury wish to bind to the notice of the Naval Yard authorities the necessity for enforcing measures which will preclude any recurrence of this nature, and recommend that a locked grid be put across any opening from which the man-hole cover has been removed while tanks are in the process of ventilation; and that all tanks should be certified in writing to be free from gas before work is commenced; and that a copy of such certificate be handed to the contractor concerned and signed for by him."

The Coroner after placing the jury's rider on record thanked the jurors for the interest they had taken in a long and difficult case. The jury was then discharged.

BRAVE CONSTABLE COMMENDED. Some minutes after the Court had been cleared the jurors returned and expressed a desire to see the Coroner. On the Coroner resuming his seat, the Foreman said: "The jury wish to put on record their appreciation of the courageous conduct of Naval Yard Police Constable Hancock."

This additional rider was placed on record.

SINGAPORE HARBOUR.

THE GATEWAY OF THE FAR EAST.

The following appears in Chamber's Journal of August, from the pen of C. Wright:—

Set in a large bay, walled in on the south by a chain of islands, some times, according to the shadows and the light, appearing to be miles away, at other times thrown up in bold relief, seemingly near; flanked on the west by a small chain of verdure-clad isles, forming a link like a series of stepping stones a rose the shimmering sea between Singapore and the Dutch Islands; and bounded on the east by Tanjong Katong's palm-girt edge, is an expanse of water rightly termed the Gateway of the Far East.

In and out of this natural harbour come and go most ships that run East, displaying many different flags. This is the great radiating trade centre of all the territories lying between India and China, a truly great port, with a greater future before it.

By Tanjong Rhu there is a forest of masts of the Chinese junks lying in the bend of the bay. Queer-looking sailors these junks are, with their high raised, poop, a stern—reminiscent of small Spanish galleons that sailed the Main in the good old days of Queen Bess. Many and strange indeed are the places these hardy Celestials journey to in the quest of the dollar.

To the Never-heard-of Isles that stud the emerald sea to the south; up the mangrove-fringed turbid rivers of Borneo, the land of the orang-outang and Dyak head-hunters; away to the dark, gloomy forests of Papua, the haunt of the birds of paradise and cannibals. Perhaps to the west, to the Andamans (long the convict settlement of India), and the Nicobars, or the swampy coast and rivers of Sumatra, up creeks and streams that know not the white man. Down to the Spice Islands, the Mecca of the Portuguese navigators of the fifteenth century, the Moluccas, and Celebes, where in quiet nooks and hidden places they meet the aborigines and barter with them, bringing their merchandise into Singapore to exchange for more gain.

Coming farther east, one enters the breakwater, wherein lying tugging at their anchors, are a host of small steamers. Many there are, all shapes and sizes, ranging from three hundred tons to over one thousand. These little ships are the island boats—the majority display the Dutch flag—the carriers of rich merchandise from Java, Sumatra, the Spice Islands, and all those little isles which stretch eastward from Java to the Moluccas.

Many and varied are the things they bring, and all day long, as the serang's whistle pipes, the clatter and rattle of winches is heard, and over the side, into great unwieldy Chinese and Tamil lighters, go bales, boxes, sacks, matting encasing pepper, macis, cloves, cinnamon, cassia, coffee, tea, skins, dragon's blood jelotong, gutta serena, gambier, rice, tapiocas, ragos, and all the rest of the commodities that come through this port—the wealth of the Indies. Some of the filled lighters are towed up the river and discharge their cargoes into a merchan's godown; whilst others are taken over to where the big ocean-going steamers, outside the breakwater, received their load, to trickle later into the markets of Europe and the United States, South America, South Africa, or Australasia, for this port is the hub of the shipping world, radiating out direct service to all corners of the globe.

In among these small ships one can pick out the blue, white and black funnelled boats of the local Straits Steamship Company, painted white their hulls, with that curious accommodation built up over the bow, and one stump mast. But they have a very good name for being serviceable, practical, and thoroughly comfortable. Under the red ensign also are comic little boats with great Chinese hieroglyphics painted on their sides; these belong to Chinese companies and ply between here and Rangoon, Bangkok, Saigon, Canton, Swatow, and Chinese ports.

Fussy little petrol and steam driven launches poke in and around the busy shipping; and hosts of Chinese sampans—each propelled by one sculler, standing up to his rowing facing the direction he is travelling—toss about on the sea causing much whistling, hooting, and horn blowing from the Malay crews of the launches. And desperately indeed does the Celestial gentleman, dressed in blue shorts, remainder of his pigtail bobbed up under his straw hat—a hat such as horses wear in London on hot summer days—ply his oars to escape a ducking that some scooting launch looks like giving him.

Outside the breakwater in the open roads are the long-distance, ocean-going steamers, huddled in with comb-crane, lighters, tongkangs, trawlers, and all the miscellaneous craft that one finds in Singapore waters. There they remain, well loaded down in the water, awaiting

OBITUARY.

MR. FRANK P. LONG.

News has just been received by cable of the death of Mr. Frank P. Long manager of the British American Tobacco Co. Ltd., at Yunnanfu, on August 30.

The late Mr. Long was an American citizen, born at Portland, Oregon, in 1880 and was the second son of the late Mrs. S. E. Long, who passed away in Shanghai last September. He was for a number of years manager of the B. A. T. Co. in Canton from whence he was transferred to Yunnanfu in 1909, and had been stationed there until the time of his demise.

The late Mr. Long was very popular amongst his colleagues as well as a large circle of friends here, in the Coast Ports and at Yunnanfu. He was unmarried but has left a number of brothers and sisters who deeply mourn his loss and for whom much sympathy will be felt in their sad bereavement.

The interment took place at Yunnanfu on August 31.

YOUNG MAN'S GOLD RIBS

GUARDED BY POLICE.

A remarkable story of a young man with a metal plate in his skull and with artificial ribs and other bones is told in a message from Breslau. It appears that the young man, who was a locksmith's apprentice, fell from the roof of a house and was frightfully injured. He was taken to hospital, where the doctors found that his skull was fractured and all his ribs but one were broken. The youth was in hospital for no less than four and a half years, and finally the surgeons undertook to repair or replace his shattered ribs. A metal plate was inserted in his skull, and the fractured bones were replaced by ribs of gold and platinum. Two and a half years later the young man was able to leave hospital, and since then has been working in a cigarette factory. In view of the present value of gold and platinum, it is evident that the young man is carrying about in his body quite a considerable amount of wealth, and it is stated that special measures are being taken to protect him against criminals.

their turn to load on to the steamer. Cleaving their way slowly through the sea come a string of big, heavy tongkangs, towed by a puffing launch. Under the kajang (native rush matting) covering, one can see them filled with small wooden boxes of uniform size; these are cases of crude rubber outward-bound to London or New York markets, for this is the great rubber port of the world. Out beyond the breakwater the red ensign comes into its own again, and some times a sleek, powerful-looking cruiser slides into moorings near by, here to 'lay and gear' to-morrow proudly displaying the white ensign—no fuss, no noise, typical representative of the great silent service to which she belongs.

From the point on the land opposite to the western side of the breakwater come the docks proper extending beyond the bend past the island of Pulau Brani round the corner. Here the liner land their passengers. There are plenty of sheds on the wharfs for the perishable merchandise that is discharged here, and the usual railways that go hand-in-hand with the wharfs.

Here berth the great eighteen-thousand ton liners of the P&O mail. That boat a little lower down, painted white with lines like yacht, is the Dutch mail boat that plies between here and Java—a regular service. Here come also the British India ships, always well represented; and in the lagoon dock still farther down the quays of the Japanese—and every now and then some American boats—berth. Looking down the long row of ships berthed alongside the wharfs, one always sees at least four of the ubiquitous Blue Funnel boats of Alfred Holt.

Very busy always are the wharfs themselves. A living stream of lascars and Tamil coolies pours in and out of the neighbouring sheds, running two-wheeled barrows, or carrying all sorts of boxes to and from the ships' sides. The stalwart Chinese coolies is to the fore, man-handling enormous weights. Between the sheds comes another stream of dusky humanity to whom a coal jump lies over the other side of the road. Dirt-begrimed, running at their usual jog-trot, they empty their sacks or baskets of coal into the ship's side.

Lower down still, facing the island of Pulau Brani, where the smokestacks of the Straits Trading Company's tin-smelting works stand out prominently, the P. & O. have a private wharf of their own. Farther still come the drydocks at Keppel Harbour.

Truly a great port this, with infinite possibilities in front of it still awaiting development.

GOVT. GAZETTE.

THE GIFT OF IT.

Pilot fees are altered again. Mr. Lowe's membership of our L. C. has been approved by King George.

Also same Mr. Bird's. D. Kumarsamy Pillai of the G.O.H. is added to the register of medical practitioners.

Philippines Govt. says we have rinderpest here, and bans cattle going.

Of many stories told of the late Wu Ting Fang, here is a typical one: Mr. Wu was told that a youthful pastor of the church had recently resigned to enter upon a new field of labour on the Pacific coast.

"Why did he resign?" asked Mr. Wu.

"Because he had received a call to another church," was the reply.

"What salary did you pay him?"

"Four thousand dollars."

"What is his present salary?"

"Eight thousand dollars."

"Ah," said the disciple of Confucius, "a very loud call."

CHURCH NOTES.

THE TWELFTH SUNDAY
AFTER TRINITY.

To the children of Israel, journeying through the wilderness came a glimpse of the glory of Heaven. When Moses was given the Tables of Stone he beheld God through a cloud, yet when he came down from the mountain his skin shone so brightly that he had to veil his face. And he delivered to his people, what St. Paul describes as "ministration of condemnation."

Now St. Paul gives to his converts and to-day the ministers of Christ's Church give to us the further development of the law "Love one another" and "the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ" must shine in the lives of all true Christians. The reflection of God's light on the face of Moses was glorious, more glorious still are the faces mirroring the job of the Holy Spirit but most glorious of all will be that time when all who have striven to worship on earth, shall meet in Heaven before the Beatific Vision.

"Father of Jesus, love's reward
What rapture will it be Prostrate before Thy Throne to lie
And gaze and gaze on Thee."

To-morrow's Gospel makes us remember the words of Isaiah, "And the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped." Jesus could not heal, unless there was a certain measure of faith; in this miracle, it is the faith of the poor man's friends, teaching us that no prayers and faith on our part for others can ever be wasted. Our Lord takes the man apart, perhaps that the multitude may not distract him, perhaps that he may be more impressed—often in solitude we can best realize Christ's power. Then Jesus uses outward means, touching the affected ears and tongue, perhaps this too was to strengthen the man's faith because we read afterwards that his friends were astonished, to see they were not quite certain of a cure.

"We have not faith; we cannot know
For knowledge is of things we see
And yet we trust it comes from Thee
A beam in darkness—let it grow."

September 8th. is the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary. Of her birth and death the Gospels say nothing; of her life they say very little only once during Christ's Ministry are her words recorded. She stands before us in a great silence, the Eternal Mother, holding in her arms the Word made Flesh, the silence of humility and perfect self-surrender.

Then in Revelations there is a new picture of her. "A woman clothed with the Sun, and the Moon under her feet and upon her head a crown of twelve stars."

According to news received from St. John's Kaffaria, it appears that the Bishop is being forced to resign on account of continual ill-health. The diocese is known to be one of considerable activity, especially amongst the non-European population, and it is to be hoped that a good man will be chosen to carry on the old traditions which are of the definite churchman style.

Canon Chapman of Boston is to be the new Suffragan Bishop of Colchester. He has made a name for himself principally by his interest in Poor Law work and education.

The Bishop of Ynnévelly is to be made the new Bishop of Mar'ras. He went to India in 1897 and has been associated with the C.M.S.

At Winchester Diocesan Conference recently the Bishop moved a resolution that the National Assembly be asked to draft a measure for dividing the diocese into three: Winchester, Guildford, and Portsmouth.

This was seconded by Viscount Wolmer and two amendments were lost. The Earl of Selborne moved that the Conference pledge itself to raise the

DIVORCE IN TOGOLAND.

In the first report on the British mandated sphere of Togoland, compiled by Mr. C. D. Trotter, District Commissioner of the Gold Coast, there are some interesting notes on native social conditions, in the former German colony. Polygamy, it appears, is universal, and a man keeps as many wives as he can afford. The average is about two. There are no specific grounds for divorce, the mere disinclination of one of the parties to continue the union being sufficient to warrant it being dissolved. "Viewed from our standards, one would call the people immoral rather than immoral. Unfaithfulness on the part of a wife is not considered particularly damaging to her character, unless it is repeated a number of times. It is atoned for by the payment of damages by the paramour, the lady's word as to identity of the individual and the truth of the accusation being proof of the offence. There is a fixed scale for the different classes, namely: 25 in the case of a head chief, 50s. for a sub-chief, 30s. for the more educated and influential classes, and 15s. for the proletariat. This applies whether the individual of the class mentioned is the offender or is offended against."

necessary funds for division by June 1924 and this was carried.

The Exeter Diocesan Conference at Plymouth on the same day decided that it was advisable that the diocese be divided and a new see of Plymouth created, and that the Bishop be requested to take immediate steps to that end. It is claimed that £50,000 will be necessary for the new diocese.

Many votes were recorded against the resolution, opposition to the formation of a new see being mainly from the point of view of financial difficulties, administration, and sentiment. The Bishop of Exeter favoured the scheme. Later, however, his lordship announced a letter from the Prime Minister stating that the King had approved of the appointment of a second Suffragan Bishop to the diocese. His lordship was asked to submit two names to the Prime Minister through the Archbishop in due course.

Considerable indignation has been aroused in Plymouth over the proposed Suffragan—what the people there want is a Bishop with full diocesan powers, and they ought to get one too.

I feel confident, said the Bishop of Kensington, speaking at the first annual meeting of the Spiritual Healing Fellowship, "That we are at the beginning of a new era of our Church." He went on to talk of Mr. Hickson's three years work in America, in the East, in India, in Japan, Egypt, China, and Palestine, and said that he had been "used very wonderfully of God." In many places his visits have been followed by an increase of faith, for as letters read at the meeting testified, his work has been on the spiritual plane. "The body of the Church is very sick indeed; we are coming to see that it is going to be healed not only on the material plane or on the mental plane but on the spiritual plane.... When we talk of spiritual healing it is generally supposed that what is meant is something that is miraculous and sudden. We want to say here and now that it is nothing of the kind. Healing is God's work, through different means (purely physical) is by doctors and nurses, another by mental suggestions (M. Coué). There remains the spiritual. All these are means which God intended to be used and not used separately. Faith means the will to base life on the assumption that God is here and God is Love and God is Power. That is the faith we want to recover. Christ wishes to be represented by life more abundant, not by disease and ill-health. The manifestation of that health is the health which he came to give. When we talk of Christian healing and the Church's ministry of healing, we are pointing to Jesus in the midst, the One and the only Healer of men's minds."

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

SNORUM HAS A NARROW ESCAPE.

Snorum, as you know, was a dear little kitten with long silky fur. She sat in the sun and washed herself for hours at a time and nowhere could you have found a prettier cat.

Snip and Snop, the dogs were very fond of her and when they were at home the three were usually together, though when the dogs went out for their long walks Snorum had to be left behind.

One day Snip and Snop were just setting out with Mary. Snorum was sitting outside washing her paws. "Goodbye Snorum," they cried. "We shall not be away very long. Wouf, wouf, wouf." (Which meant "Goodbye again.")

Snorum meowed at them and waved a paw and watched them until they had turned a corner. They were gone rather a long time after all as Mary had to take a message to a friend of her mother's, who lived some distance away. Then, on the way back, it came on to rain heavily and they had to shelter at another house so they were not very surprised that Snorum was not at the door to meet them and the dogs rushed in to have a drink of water without thinking any more about her.

Snip and Snop went to sleep in their baskets afterwards as it was a hot thundery day and they were tired after the long walk and Mary and her mother were sewing, so that it was tea time before anyone thought any more about the kitten.

And then Mary remarked, "It seems queer that Snorum is not anywhere about. I never remember her being away for so long, except once when she was caught in a trap. Snip and Snop you had better hunt for her."

Off the two dogs went obediently and scoured the garden and country all round.

"I can't understand her going such a long way," said Snip to Snop. "You know she never likes to go far from home."

"It does seem strange," agreed Snop and they ran up and down the paths looking for her everywhere.

"Have you found her doggies?" called out Mary.

"No," they barked and they all went on looking for her until it was dark.

"What can have happened," said Mary and she was very anxious about her pet.

"Supposing she comes back late at night and cannot get in," Mary said to her mother. "What will she do?"

"You had better tell cook to leave the door of the woodshed open," replied her mother. "An' she would be quite comfortable in there."

The next day however Snorum did not appear, nor the next night, and the morning after at breakfast time Mary's father said that he would put an advertisement in the paper and offer a reward as Snorum was a well-bred Persian cat.

Hardly were the words out of his mouth when they heard a faint "meow" outside the door. Mary rushed to open it and there was Snorum, looking very wretched and dragged, with a bit of rope tied round her neck.

"The poor dear," cried Mary picking her up and seizing a knife from the table to cut the rope which was tied so tightly that it was chafing the poor cat's neck and it was some time before her fine furry collar looked all right again.

Snorum, much to Mary's surprise, for she had never been a thief made a dart at some bacon on a plate.

"Why the poor creature is starving," exclaimed Mary's mother as she poured some milk into a saucer and gave it to Snorum, who lapped it up in no time.

Snip and Snop were looking on anxiously and as soon as their friend had had enough to eat they asked her what had been happening.

Then she told them how a rough man had seized her as she was sitting in the sun outside the house and had put her inside his coat and carried her away. When he let her out she was in a small dirty room where a girl sat "sewing" (said Snorum with a shudder) "something that looked like cats' skins!"

"They must have been the things that ladies wear round their neck sometimes," Snop put in and then Snorum went on to say that the man had fastened her up with the rope and left her all day without anything to eat and how at night, when he, and the girl had gone away, she had pulled until the old rope had broken and then, after many adventures, she had found her way home.

Cats, as you know can always find their way home again.

Mary had not been able to understand all this but guessed what had happened, so after that, unless Snip and Snop were with her, Snorum stayed in the house or garden and never strayed far away.

RUBBER RESULTS AT THE HAGUE.

Mr. R. N. G. Bingley, who was one of the London rubber directors who attended the meeting of the International Association at The Hague recently, has, writes the London correspondent of the Ceylon Observer, given an account of his visit and a summary of the proceedings. There was little in what he said that was not already known. He concludes: Subject to the approval of the Minister of Colonies and the Governor-General of Netherlands India, a committee to confer with the first named official was nominated by the meeting, and this fact, together with the results of the voting, were called officially to the Netherlands India Government for their information and advice.

The final decision as to Government intervention still rests, therefore, as I intimated a fortnight ago in the remarks I just read you, with the two Dutch officials there mentioned, and I have every confidence that they will give the matter their most serious consideration, and that a British-Dutch conference in some form or other will result therefrom. This very clearly states what the present position is.

A Rangoon message of July 28, says:—The Rangoon Diocesan Conference debated until the early hours of the morning the propriety of accepting a donation to Church Fund from the Rangoon Turf Club. A motion was brought by a clerical member of the Conference urging refusal of the donation as the money was the product of gambling, which was a cause of much misery and could not be countenanced by the Church. The Bishop concluded his speech by saying that he hesitatingly decided that there was no reason why the money should not be accepted. On the matter being put to the vote the Conference decided in favour of acceptance of the Turf Club's contribution. Much feeling has been roused locally and it has been rumoured that the Turf Club might withdraw its offer since it was received so doubtfully. Lay members of the Conference were unexpectedly supported in voting for the acceptance of the money by certain clergymen who were formerly against using tainted money for Church work.

CHINESE ACTOR THREATENED.

CHARGE OF INTIMIDATION.

At the Magistracy yesterday afternoon, Mr. E. W. Hamilton heard evidence in the case in which a Chinese youth was charged with the intimidation of a Chinese actor, and with demanding money from him by menaces.

Mr. R. E. A. Webster appeared for the complainant, Wong Siu-hung, and Mr. Leo d'Almada for the defendant Hui Lin.

The intimidation was alleged to have occurred between August 18 and 24, and the defendant was said to have demanded $100 from the complainant by means of menaces. Even after the defendant's arrest, it was stated, the complainant was not left in peace for he received two letters threatening that he would be shot dead if the defendant were punished.

Complainant who was a member of the Chuk Wa Nin theatrical troop now performing at the Kau-yung Theatre, arrived with the Company on August 10, and the blackmailing was started a week later. On the 18th ult. the defendant, it was alleged, came with others to the matched theatre at Causeway Bay and demanded $100, saying "you must pay us $100, because many of our brothers have come down and we have to provide them with food."

On being told by the complainant that he was very poor, the defendant was alleged to have threatened to shoot him. The next day the same three men came again and made the same demand. They were again refused. On August 21st after the Company had left the Theatre and gone to Kau U Fong Theatre the defendant went there and repeated his demand. The complainant's wife and another man were present when he called. The police were informed and the accused was arrested by two Chinese district watchmen.

Mr. Webster mentioned that the letters complainant had received subsequent to defendant's arrest, were from the "Mutual Lovers' Association."

Mr. d'Almada objected to the letter going in on the ground that unless it could be proved that defendant wrote them, they could not be used as evidence against him.

The letters were not read.

After complainant had given evidence, Mr. d'Almada asked if he had ever heard of the Woping Theatre murder some time ago.

The complainant: Yes, I heard of it in Canton.

Mr. d'Almada: In fact all the actors have heard of it and they have been very "scared"—Yes.

And recently the majority of leading actors have received threatening letters in some form or other—Many of them have.

You were one of the unfortunate victims?—Yes, but that was some time ago.

Did you receive any recently?—No. You have been going about in the course of your profession in fear of your life?—Yes.

The case was remanded until Monday, after the complainant's wife had given evidence.
